Privacy Policy

1. Information Collected: Start by describing the types of personal information you collect from your users, such as name, email address, phone number, and any additional information related to their business or project needs.
2. Return Policy: Start by clearly stating your return policy. Make it easy for users to find the return policy on your website, such as by placing it in a prominent location or providing a link in the footer or header.
3. Eligibility: Explain who is eligible to make a return. For example, do returns apply only to software defects, or can users return the product for any reason?
4. Timeframe: Specify the timeframe for returns. For example, users may have 30 days from the date of purchase to initiate a return.
5. Refund Policy: Explain how refunds will be processed. Will users receive a full refund or a partial refund? Will refunds be issued to the original payment method or as store credit?
6. Return Shipping: Specify who is responsible for return shipping costs. Will you provide a prepaid return label, or will users need to pay for return shipping?
7. Damaged or Defective Products: Explain how you handle returns for damaged or defective products. Will you provide a replacement product or issue a refund?
8. Exclusions: List any exclusions or limitations to your return policy. For example, you may not accept returns for custom software solutions or other special orders.
9. How to Initiate a Return: Provide clear instructions on how users can initiate a return. This may include providing a return request form or contact information for your customer service team.

CONCLUSION

-  Thus we conclude that we enjoyed very much working on the project “CRM(Customer Relationship Manegment)” our internal guide Prof. Riddhi Kundal helped us a lot in improving the quality of our project.
-  As well as our external guide Mr. Tejas Sagar helped us a lot in giving suggestions for better functioning of our work.
-  This is just the stepping stones for project development there is new paths to be discovered and there are new goals that are to be achieved.
